EMBARGO

Anglo-Chinese Trade Committee has urged the president of the Board of Trade to take "quick action" in relaxing the China trade embargo, the committee stated here today. Bringing the Chinese list into line with the present Boylet list was the very teast which circumstances demand, it mid. The committee which represents the Association of British Chambers of Commerce, the China Association, the Federation of British Industry, the London Chamber of Commerce and the National Union of Manufacturers said it was "concerned" at American reports that the addition of cortain Items to the Russian embargo list would be condition for bringing the Chinese list into line,

This would be an "illogical and retrograde step" which might cause serious damage to the United Kingdon's trade relations with China, ge said.

US PROPOSALS Washington, Apr. 24.

The United States has sent to allied governments detailed proposits for modifying the lists of goods now under embargo for shipment to Communist countries, informed sources said today. The proposals are considered as the basis for negotiations expected to take place be-pose to strengthen this last list by adding to it some 50 and her allies which wish to increase their trade with Communist China, it was maid.

The detailed proposals were drawn up, following the Occimation of principles which the United States last week sent to members of the Cocom and Chincom. the commissive organisations dealing respectively with exports to the Soviet bloc in Europe and to Communist China. An informed source said the American proposals had two alms:

 To tighten up restrictions on trade between the free world and the Soviet bloc 2. to impose a total embarge on delivery to Communist

China of goods of which the export to the Soviet bloc is either totally forbidden or only partially authorised.

THREE LISTS

The proposals are: 1. The maintenance of the three present lists of Cocom and the strengthening of one of them. The three lists are, products whose export to the Soviet bloo is strictly forbidden, goods whose export is partially limited and goods whose expert is closely watched, and which might at any moment be subject to modifications. American authorities pro-articles. 2. The suppression of the present Chincom black lists and the imposing of a total embergo on exports to Comfiguring on Cocom's three

. A strictor application than hitherto of the regulations under which allied governmenta can, in ourtain cases, invoke an exception procodure to deliver certain normally forbidden goods to the Communist bloc.

It was not yet known what the 50 groups of articles the American Government would like to see added to Cocom's third fist. It was known, however, that these goods have a certain "simitegio" character and include ball-bearings. This would be a particular blow 2 to Italy, which is seeking permission to export ballbearings to China.

ALIGNMENT REQUEST

In their present form, the American proposals should permit America's allies to increase to some extent their trade with China, particularly as regards, the export of a certain number of consumer .goods, agricultural. machines and some industrial machines.

The relaxation of these restrictions, however, is far from replying to the requests, particularly by Britain, Japan and France, for the pure and simple alignment of Cocom and Chincom black lists.

In principle, the American government is opposed to an extension of trade with Communist China. For its part, ... it has ... dbcided to continue to from Americans ing with Communist China. -France-Presse.

FINGES US AID TO ISRAEL POSSIBLE TO REDUCE LOSS OF LIFE ATOMIC ATTACK

Bonn, Apr. 24.
Three West German nuclear physicists today issued a statement saying that civil defence measures could decisively reduce loss of life in an atomic attack.

The three, Professors Otto Haxel, Heinz Maier-Leibnith and Wolfgang Riezler, were among the "Goettingen 18" -- the 18 atomic scientists who came out against atom weapons for West Germany in a statement issued in the University Town of Goettingen on April 12.

ITB Hides Strong Hand

IVODAY'S hand converted a couple of Eastern experts to the transfer bid.

South could see no scientific way to bid his hand. His pariner could have a minimum no-trump with the right cards and seven spades be a lay down. His partner could have a maximum notrump with the wrong cords and five spades be unmakable.

South also knew that if he tried to bid scientifically he would probably wind up by telling his opponents what to open. He therefore decided to gamble and simply leaped to six spades.

It was tough luck that: West had a natural opening lead of the queen of diamonds and that the tricks before South could get in.

If South had been using the Acquaintances you may have by the store for you tomorrow, select your JTB he would have responded with two hearts. This would be the spade transfer and in spite of only holding two spades North would have bid two of that suit.

> Then South would have jumped to six spades. East would have been on lead since North would be playing the hand with the doubleton spade.

Undoubtedly East would have ing. opened one of his aces. If he selected the diamond are he would make that trick. If he selected the club ace declarer would trump in dummy and eventually discard dummy's diamonds on the fourth heart and on the club king.

If East opened a heart or a trump, declarer would draw trumps, discard one diamond on the long heart and still make six.

GLAMOUR FOR A FEW HOURS A DAY

By JILL CAREY

The rich, glamorous world which these lovely young women represent is theirs for just a few hours a day. And it's totally superficial.

Incide themselves, there's little glamour, and no richness. I talked to 19-year-old Jean Binny, model for London couturier Digby Morion.

She said the makes £5 week-in a job coveted by most models. In a few months she mby go to £7/10/0 a week. In London a shorthand-typist can top that by £2.

But if in a few years, she reaches the peak attained by famous women like Barbura Goalen and Susan Abrahams she might chalk up an annual income of £2,000.

But, considering her work, reputattion and competition, £2,000 does not seem too much. And £6 seems ridiculous.

I asked Miss Binny if she minded being looked up and down all day.

"No, I don't, if I have a nice customer. I mean she doesn't make you feel self-conscious. She may laugh with you, and talle to you while you show her clothes...

ENGLAND

Says DENNIS HART

The forgotten man of Test cricket may help to end England's unbeaten record in a Test series since the 1950-51 visit to Australia. The forgotten man is Andrew Ganteaume, a dapper Trinidadian, a wicketkeeper but whose greatest claim to fame is as an opening batsman.

Andrew, in fact, boasts a record of which any cricketer of any country would be proud—and that includes Sir Donald Bradman himself. In every Test match in which he has played Andrew has scored a century.

played in only one Test. That was against the MCC team on the 1947-48 tour. He hit 112 and shared in an opening stand of 173.

Then-oblivion. Andrew was forgotten.

Came the great days of Weekes, Worrell and Walcott and few remembered the man who nelileved something which only one West Indian, George Headley, had managed beforea century in his Test debut,

But even when the great "W" formation was in full flow skipper John Goddard fully appreciated the sound foundation to the innings so often laid by openers Allan Rae and Jeff Stollmeyer, Their job was to nake the initiative from the bowlers and pave the way for the flashing Weekes, the burly Walcott and the elegant Worrell.

MAGNIFICENTLY

They did that job magnifleently. Rae was second in the batting averages on the 1950 tour and Stollmeyer fourth, Now there is no Rae and no Stollmeyer. What's more, the 1957 West Indies tourists, who landed in England last week, have only one recognised Test opener in Bruce Pairaudeau,

And Pairaudeau's position cannot be regarded as secure, He opened in all four Tests in to be a champion, that is, the visit to New Zealand last year and in six innings totalled 101 runs.

Garfield Sobers, the leftbados, opened once against Australla in the 1954-55 series, but was not given an opening spot on the New Zealand tour.

The chance then is there for Andrew G. Ganteaume to make his comeback to Test cricket. For Goddard's plan is to give all his possible openers the chance to show their worth.

The feeling is that they would be hard pressed to bowl "tight" the batsmen got the upper band.

And with the W's again here in force, this is always on the cards—especially if two openers establish themselves.

And we must not overlook the newcomers, particularly Jamaican gentleman named O'Neill Gordon Smith, better known as Collie. He has been called the modern Leary Consiontine, such are his efforts to keep the game moving.

A TOUGH TEST

If England's bowlers face a tough test, so do her butsmen Ignoring the possible potential of the West Indies speed attack, one does not have to look any further for the reason than "those little pals of mine," Romadhir and Valentine.

CANADA'S SECURITY SET-UP

Investigations Are Little Heard Of

By BERT L. MARSH Montreal, Apr. 24.

Probably the most striking thing about Canada's military and internal security set-up is that hardly anyone ever hears about it.

But it operates day and night. Literally tens of thousands of Canadians, in a country whose population is little more than 16 million, have unknowingly been screened for Communist sympathies, checked out as good or had bets for key government or military posts or investigated for their overall stability.

Dozens of them are news- all a Canadlan or US citizen papermen, who in the nature of needs to get through their work run almost daily into identification—such as a driver's security - shrouded matters, licence, birth certificate or in Thousands are employees of some cases even a couple of aircraft or other companies letters addressed to him at working on federal contracts, home. who swear on pain of imprisonment that they will keep mum officers seem to have uncanny about what they do, hear and memories for names and faces. see. MERCHANT 'ADOPTED' DANISH CHILDREN

By CAROL COGHILL

Copenhagen, Apr. 24. No Danish child lives more than 50 miles from the sea.

If in spite of this, many of them have no direct contact with things nautical, they cannot help being influenced by indirect contact from their earliest school days in the form of Danish maritime traditions from the Viking sagas onwards.

Its main task is to arrange for The response among the crews Danish schools to "adopt" to the Adoption Scheme is revessels in the merchant marine, ported to be very encouraging. Under this arrangement, the Most of the adopted ships are children of the "parent" school away from Denmark for months, correspond regularly with the and sometimes years on end crew of "their" ship and pay and the crew are therefore visits on board when it comes grateful for any regular contact home to Denmark.

This idea of establishing a bond between school children and a ship at sea is of British origin and has proved an outstanding success in Denmark, At present, 160 ships have been the following letter from a adopted by the same number of Danish boat on a Pacific route: schools, while 40 schools are on a waiting list for suitable vessels.

Often, sailors bring home "their" ships presents to the children-one for a special message to be equipped with Malayan musical instruments. Several schools have organised exhibitions of the objects brought back by their ships.

Holidays

Another Institution which serves to increase knowledge of the sea among Danish school children is the so-called "Vacations At Sea" scheme. During the school holidays, any boy can apply for a special ticket from this organisation permitting him to work on board some small boat, such as a tug or a harbour police launch. He receives no pay but gets instruction free of charge. In summer, about 130 boys are employed in this manner in Copenhagen harbour. Normally there are ten times us many applicants as there are suitable boats.

Boys in the last year at school can also get two weeks off during term time to work on a boat. These voyages, which are restricted to Danish waters, usually knock the sea sickness out of the boys and help them to make up their minds whether or not they want a career on the sea. About 25 per cent the boys who do this type apprenticeship decide in favour

All these methods of encouraging the young to learn some-thing of seamanship are belleved, however, eventually to play an important part producing a steady flow young men to the merchant marine, which is today one of the pillars of Danish prosperity. —China Mali Special.

Wool prices had helped bank liquidity and should also benefit farming incomes by more than A£100 million this year, the Bank said. Investment in farm improvements and capital equipment and the immediate business outlook might also be boosted. The Bank warned, however, that those developments were not without their risks. Fears were already being expressed that inflation might reemerge through the injection of new spending power. But these risks should not be over-emphasised as other features within the economy, like retail turnovers, building activity, motor vehicle sales and private capital expansion were not increasing rapidly.

Mr Jacobbson said it would be a brave man who would try to foretell how long the present investment boom would last. The volume of aggregate investments seemed to be holding up well despite reports of weakening demand in particular sectors... He did not pretend the West European countries were all in a strong position, but they certainly were better able to weather the recent storm than they had been in 1947—before the Marshall Plan had begun to operate—or 1950 when the Korean war started.

Mr Jacobbson defended Brirecent large transfaction" with the International Monetary Fund, saying that it was also in general interest that support should be given to a currency in which over half
